

Native Rhode Islander, Pete Siner, is an independent artist whose instinctive gift for words, vocals, and the guitar bring an original sound from the Ocean State. He incorporates a singer/songwriter, folk, and indie feel into powerful music.

Siner grew up in small-town Glocester, Rhode Island. Oldest brother of two siblings, Siner is no stranger to entertaining. He has an absolute knack for keeping the attention of a venue full of people. Siner attended college at both the University of Rhode Island and Rhode Island College, graduating in 2015 with a Bachelor's of Arts in Education.

Currently both a History and Music teacher at Highlander Charter School, Siner also finds the time to regularly play at multiple establishments throughout Rhode Island, private shows and weddings across New England, and teach full time.

Learning how to play guitar from videos on YouTube, Siner quickly picked it up, proving his talent and passion for the art. After making his debut in the summer of 2014, Siner quickly made his way onto the local music scene. Performing weekly shows at venues and weddings around New England, he began attracting the attention of business owners and fellow local musicians. He performed at the 2015 NAMM Summer Acoustic Stage in Nashville, TN where musicians including Stevie Wonder, Kenny Burrell, Taylor Swift, and Darryl Jones, of the Rolling Stones, have performed and walked the convention floors.

Siner was invited back this past January to perform on the 2016 Winter NAMM Acoustic Stage in Anaheim, California, where he performed his original songs, You, Burn It Down, See Through You and Towards It.

Receiving praise for his original music, Siner's single, You, debuted live for the first time on television's The Rhode Show on July 29, 2015. Siner recently returned to The Rhode Show as a 2016 Big Break Finalist where he performed his original song Burn it Down.

Siner was most recently granted a Featured Artist page by the G7th Capo Company.
